Higgins Promoted to Vice President of Business Development for Collegiate Project Services

Jennifer Higgins of Denver, North Carolina, has been promoted to the position of Vice President for Business Development for Collegiate Project Services.

“As Collegiate Project Services enters the next decade, we begin an exciting new chapter in our history. Jennifer’s background and skill set is a perfect match for this position. She has delivered virtually every service we offer and uses this knowledge together with her exceptional communication skills when working with our prospective and current clients,” said Jann Gillingham, President of Collegiate Project Services.

Higgins has led a variety of projects in both public and private institutions during her eight-year tenure at Collegiate Project Services. Prior to joining Collegiate Project Services, Higgins worked as a District Manager for ADP and was responsible for selling human resources and payroll services.

“Drawing from my experience as a Collegiate Project Services consultant, I have a deep understanding of the challenges and concerns our clients face during complex technology projects and how our services add value. This first-hand perspective will inform how I approach my new role in business development. I am proud and honored to have the opportunity to contribute to the ongoing success of our company in a new way,” said Higgins.

Higgins is engaged to be married, and she and her fiancé are currently renovating their dream home on Lake Norman in Denver, NC. She cherishes time at home on the lake, loves to cook and dabbles in the art of letterpress printing.
